Identify the religious dimension in human history

Animism

The belief that natural objects, natural phenomena and the universe itself possess souls or consciousness. The Latin word ‘animus’ means "soul" or "life."

Sir Edward Tyler was a British anthropologist (1832-1917) in his book Primitive Culture, described it animism as the "idea of pervading life and will in nature“.

Shinto is an example of animism.
Polytheism

Polytheism is the belief in and worship of many gods. These gods are distinguished by particular functions, and often take on human characteristics. This was particularly true in ancient Greece and Rome. Ancient Egypt gods take on the form and characteristics of objects found in nature, including trees, sacred herbs, cattle, animals and animal--human hybrids. Hinduism is an example of polytheism.
Monotheism

Monotheism is the belief in a single all-powerful, creator god or deity.

The Abrahamic religions of Judaism, Christianity, and Islam are widely practiced forms of monotheism.
Evaluate the place of the religious dimension in human history to provide:
• meaning and purpose for the individual
• social cohesion
• social transformation
What is the meaning and purpose of the religious dimension for the individual? How does the religious dimension provides answers to the enduring questions of human existence?

Pope describes Palestinian leader as ‘an angel of peace’ 16 May 2015.
“All of us are called (by God) to be free, all are called to be sons and daughters, and each, according to his or her own responsibilities, is called to combat modern forms of enslavement. From every people, culture and religion, let us join our forces.”

The Civil Rights Movement

Life’s most persistent and urgent question is, 'What are you doing for others?'
~ Martin Luther King, Jr.
Transformation?
The Parents Circle Families Forum
Bereaved families of Jews and Palestinians

- To create a framework of reconciliation between the 2 peoples that takes into account that any peace agreement must include an infrastructure for the process of reconciliation.

- To work towards an end to violence and towards achieving an accepted political agreement.

- To influence the public and the political decision makers to choose dialogue and the path of peace over violence and war in order to achieve a just settlement based on empathy and understanding.

- To avoid the use of bereavement for further violence and retribution.

Global Distribution of the Five Major Religious Traditions
Majority Religion, by Country

Countries are colored according to the majority religion. Darker shading represents a greater prevalence of the majority religion.

Nine countries have no clear religious majority: Guinea Bissau, Ivory Coast, Macau, Nigeria, Singapore, South Korea, Taiwan, Togo and Vietnam. There are no countries in which adherents of folk religions make up a clear majority. There are also no countries in which followers of other religions (such as Bahai's, Jains, Sikhs, Shintoists, Taoists, followers of Tenrikyo, Wiccans or Zoroastrians) make up a clear majority.
New religious expressions
Emerging movements in Western culture characterised by an individual approach to spiritual exploration.
Includes a loose network of seekers, teachers and healers often incorporating elements of ancient and indigenous religions such as Wicca, Native American spiritualties.
The term ‘new’ is a misnomer as many of the practices are in fact centuries old.
And developments within established religious traditions.

Recognise the reasons for the rise of new religious expressions as people:

- search for personal fulfilment
  “It’s all about me”
- seek ethical guidelines
  “What is good for me is good, isn’t it?”
- seek to clarify their relationship with society
  “What is my purpose in life?” “How do I fit in?”
The influences on the growth of new religious expressions and spiritualities:

- Materialism
- Scientific progress
- Growth of ecological awareness
- Disenchantment with ‘traditional’ religious practice and guidance
New religious expression is all about the individual
Non-Religious Worldviews

• the human search for personal fulfilment through non-religious practices:
  – Agnosticism
  – Atheism
  – Humanism
The Sunday Assembly is a secular congregation that celebrates life. Our motto: live better, help often, wonder more. Our mission: A Sunday Assembly in every town, city and village that wants one. Our vision: To help everyone live life as fully as possible.

Outline the essential features of Atheism

Disbelief or lack of belief in the existence of God or gods. Nothing exists outside of humanity and this world.

Modern atheism is largely the product of the seventeenth century European Enlightenment that advocated the use of reason over religion because the religion was associated with irrationality and primitive superstitions.
Richard Dawkins

Peter Singer
Agnosticism
A person who believes that nothing is known or can be known of the existence or nature of God. The term agnosticism was coined by nineteenth century scientist Thomas Huxley who put together "a", which means not, with the word "gnosis" which is the Greek word for knowledge. This negative prefix to the word for knowledge underlined the assertion that there is not sufficient knowledge to require a belief in the existence of a divine being.
Outline the positions of:

Rational Humanism

Human progress through logical thought being utilised to better the quality of human life for humankind. i.e. Supports use of reason, compassion, equality, morality and ethics to build a better world.
Scientific Humanism

Draws upon science and technology to address the big problems of poverty, environmental degradation, social inequalities and other global issues faced by contemporary societies.

Sir Julian Huxley, the first Director-General of the United Nations' Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation (UNESCO) coined the term.

Scientific humanism strives to achieve equality and peace on a global scale.
How do Agnosticism, Atheism and Humanism determine the aspirations and behaviour of individuals?

Ethical behaviour will be determined by the individual’s own understanding of what is good and bad. It is not based on reward or punishment of a higher being but the individual's own reasons for acting in a particular manner.

Key events in a person’s life may need to be celebrated in forms other than those offered by a religious tradition. For example birth, marriage and death.

In the absence of a belief in life after death, the person will view the present life as the opportunity to achieve their goals. This realization may well affect a person’s attitude to may life issues such as health, contribution to society and personal relationships.

If the personal argues that human life is itself essentially good, and worthy persevering, then a person might devote themselves to activities which attempt to improve their life and the lives of others. This may take the form of working for social welfare and education. If this common humanity is recognised, the individual may also work towards the peace.
Compare the response of ONE religious and ONE non-religious belief system to:

– the concept of the transcendent
– the human person
– social responsibility
